Dear Mr. Richard Houston:

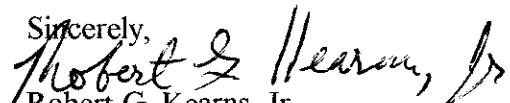

In receipt of your letter dated March 20, 2002, I offer the following:

First off I sent my letters of April 19, 2001 and February 25, 2002 respectively to governors Tom Ridge and Mark Schweiker asking for their recommendation and support for a criminal investigation of the Blair County Court and Children and Youth Services by the State Attorney General's Office and/or the United States Department of Justice. Please be advised that at no time did I request your state agency's intervention into this matter concerning me and my daughter Stephanie Kearns.

However, it is my position sir that the Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare and the Blair County Children and Youth Services is not the solution to the ongoing child abuse of my daughter, but rather has been the primary cause why she has been allowed to be abused for the last four years. It pains me terribly to say that my daughter has been psychologically damaged beyond repair, which raises the question of how you people sleep at night. Sorry, but hiding this atrocity under the "best interest of the child" doesn't cut it anymore.

Because of the gross incompetence and bias of the aforementioned child protective service agencies it would appear to a prudent person that the common denominator for the record fixing in this case 96 GN 2139 by Blair County Court judges was done to cover up your corrupted agency's proverbial butt sir. Hence, this is why we have been tirelessly attempting to get the Blair County Court, Children and Youth Services, Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare and its miscreant accomplices investigated for criminal contributory child abuse, altering public records, innumerable civil rights violations, and nonfeasance. And to avoid the political ramifications of this issue, this is exactly why our illustrious state politicians are passing the buck to you for your flippant and discretionary disposition of the matter. Apparently this smoke and mirrors act is Rule 101 of the political science courses you people take before entering government service.

In closing, I don't need a lawyer to fix up this government corruption problem, we need an investigation and criminal prosecution to bring it to justice.

Sincerely,

Robert G. Kearns, Jr.
